The Journal of the Canadian Chiropractic Association (JCCA) is pleased to announce that Dr. Kent Stuber has joined the Editorial Board.

Dr. Stuber is a 2002 graduate from Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College (CMCC). He has since been practicing in Calgary, initially as an associate/independent contractor, and now as clinic co-director in private practice along with his wife, Dr. Caterina Lerede.

In the fall of 2005, he resumed his academic career enrolling in the MSc in Health and Social Care Research program from the School of Health and Related Research (ScHARR) at the University of Sheffield, UK. This unique distance learning program has allowed him to augment his research skills considerably, while being able to maintain a full-time practice, without sacrificing time with his wife and young son, Morgan. Dr. Stuber is the author or co-author of articles in peer-reviewed journals such as the Journal of the Canadian Chiropractic Association (JCCA) and Chiropractic and Osteopathy. He has also written several online continuing education courses for a program sponsored by the University of Bridgeport College of Chiropractic as post-graduate faculty member and has authored an online continuing education course for CMCC.

Dr. Stuber's current research focus mainly involves completing projects towards his Master's degree, such as qualitative research in the form of observing a sports chiropractic specialist's office, semi-structured interviewing of several chiropractors for their experience of treating chronic pain, and developing a questionnaire for patients with benign forms of vertigo.
